

 Ex Parte Application Filed. Evidence Vanishing. Court Notified.

On June 3, we filed a copyright infringement lawsuit in Cordova v. Huneault.

On June 6, Mr. Huneault was notified.

Since then?

1,700+ videos deleted.

Over 62 million views wiped.

Today, we filed an Ex Parte Application for Preservation Order in federal court. Why? Because this is spoliation in real time.

If you think deleting your entire channel protects you, think again.

Stay tuned.

Wow!!

Frauditor Troll deleted the video @DenverMetroAudits alleges was infringing—
AND more than 1,700 other videos.

If the lawsuit was so "frivolous" ...

If the video was clearly fair use...

Why delete it?

Coming Soon: A deep dive into Cordova v. Huneault—a newly filed case in the Northern District of California (Case No. 25-cv-04685-VKD).

If you follow the world of First Amendment audits and online commentary, you'll recognize the parties: Christopher Cordova (aka Denver Metro Audits) vs. Jonathan Huneault (better known as Frauditor Troll).

Yes... I'm the lawyer representing DMA.

Yes... this is going to be interesting.

Stay tuned.

BREAKING: Frauditor Troll's Channel in Freefall!

For those who called our lawsuit "frivolous," we invite you to check Social Blade.

In just 14 days, Frauditor Troll has:

Deleted (or privatized) more than 1,500 videos (including the video that is the subject of the lawsuit);

Lost over 6.2 million views;

Nuked 1,194 videos in one day (June 18).

And all of this started on June 6, 2025, the day he got an email asking him to waive service of DMA's lawsuit.
